

SNAP2STORE

Presented by Al Jann Jakilan, Ian Bornas, Josh
Legaspi, and Zidane Yu

DEATH OF THE “PHYSICAL”

As technology advances, so does the vastness of the digital age. Remnants of the past century are slowly consumed by electronics, by numbers on the screen, “binary digits”, and the computer. Still, there exist multitudes on this world that toil and sweat each day to preserve the physical aspects that once were. Video games, movies, books, manga, and many more.

INTRODUCING SNAP2STORE

Snap2Store allows ease of find. Just snap the media in your hands right there, and then paste it on the map. Instantaneously, you'll be able to pinpoint where you can find and get your hands on it from the collaborative effort of numerous vendors and stores that are housing the media.

FEATURES

- AI-Powered Searches for Better Results
- Real-time collaborations between users and sellers
- Smart UI/UX and intuitive design and navigation
- Lightweight and Phone Friendly

WHY THIS APP?

There is a resurgence in interest on “old things”, “outdated systems”, “physical media”, “nostalgia”. Snap2Store aims to marry nostalgia with realtime, to intertwine physical reality with digital assistance. What makes this application special is its dedication to keeping businesses alive by promoting and collaborating with people who had no access to them before.

